How To Use The ARK

Welcome To The ARK

Annals of Research and Knowledge \(ARK\)

A blueprint for an evidence-based justice system

The ARK is a searchable database containing information on evidence-based and promising programs for persons involved in the criminal justice system. Because no intervention works for everyone, programs are cataloged according to participants' risk and need profiles and stage of processing in the justice system. For example, users can obtain information on programs suited for high risk and high need individuals at the pretrial stage, or low risk and low need individuals at the pre-arrest stage.

Users can find programs in several ways, including traditional word or phrase searches or by navigating the three-dimensional ARK structure (to the left).

You can learn more about the ARK's background and design by exploring content in the menu or by requesting training.
